

CEO TASMIN LUCIA-KHAN FILES ANTI-SLAPP MOTION AGAINST GUNNAR RYAN WIIK

Reference is made to the Shareholder Update from WR Entertainment ASA (the "Company") dated 12 May 2017, where it was stated that former employee Gunnar Ryan Wiik had filed a complaint against the Company's CEO, Tasmin Lucia-Khan in which Wiik alleges Lucia-Khan defamed him, trespassed on his personal property, invaded his privacy, and defrauded him. Lucia-Khan said that the claims were baseless and had no merit.

On September 27, 2017, the CEO Lucia-Khan filed an anti-SLAPP motion against Gunnar Ryan Wiik with the Superior Court for the State of California in the County of Los Angeles. A SLAPP is a "Strategic Lawsuit Against Public Participation – a lawsuit that is intended to censor, intimidate, and silence critics by burdening them with the cost of a legal defence until they abandon their criticism or opposition." Section 425.16 of the California Code of Civil Procedure, commonly known as the "anti-SLAPP" statute, was enacted to shield parties from such meritless lawsuits, in which the complaint arises from protected activity in furtherance of the rights to free speech and the rights to petition the courts.

The Company's CEO is filing an anti-SLAPP motion as both the Company and the CEO are of the belief that Wiik's lawsuit against her is both malicious and frivolous, and was designed to intimidate and humiliate the CEO, – and impede the fraud investigation against Wiik.

The anti-SLAPP motion was filed specifically as to Wiik's defamation claims, which generally accuse the CEO of defaming Wiik by discussing allegations of misconduct, shareholder fraud, corporate fraud, conversion, and breach of fiduciary duty with other WR Inc. employees, the Company's board members, and shareholders. The CEO is requesting the Court to strike the defamation claims, as they improperly seek to hold Lucia-Khan liable for statements she made in connection with WR Inc.'s prelitigation investigation leading to the June 2017 lawsuit filed against Wiik, and relate directly to the claims WR Inc. ultimately brought against Wiik. Lucia-Khan asserts that her conduct in conducting the prelitigation investigation was protected from suit as a matter of law, and is requesting the Court award her fees and costs incurred in litigating this motion.

Referencing the stock release from WR ASA dated June 20, 2017, the extensive fraud investigation which started in November 2016 concluded with WR Inc. filing a lawsuit against Gunnar Ryan Wiik in the Superior Court for the State of California in the County of Los Angeles on June 19, 2017. WR Inc. alleges in that lawsuit that Wiik abused his position of trust to fraudulently take almost 19 million shares that belonged to WR Inc. for his personal benefit, as well as to fraudulently claim hundreds of thousands of dollars from WR Inc. that he was not owed.
